Freelance web designer

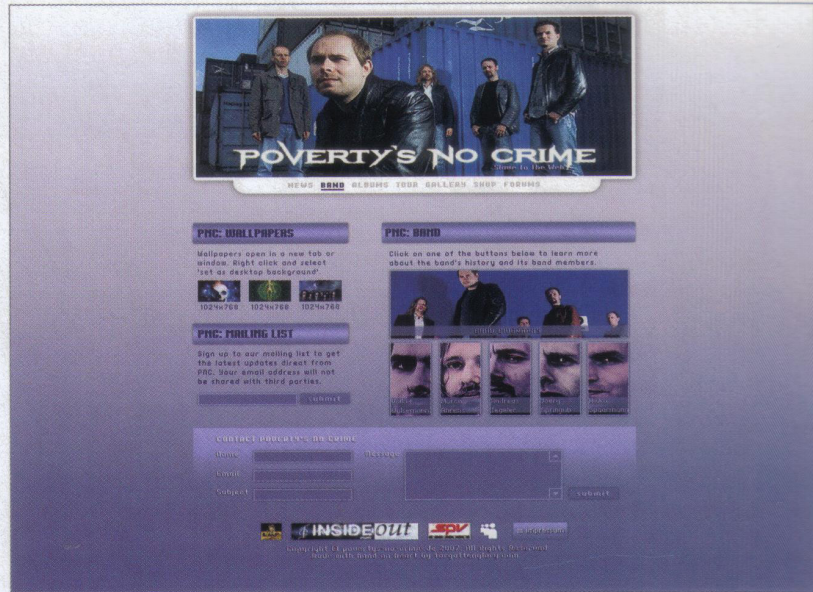

Flash, Photoshop, Dreamweaver, hand coded HTML, CSS, ActionScript 2.0/3.0

LONDON-BASED MAURITIAN web designer Anupam Bansoodeb studied for a Master Certified Internet Webmaster (CIW) Designer certification with UK IT Training and has been designing websites for five years now. Although most of his work is Flash based, he is equally comfortable designing static HTML/CSS websites.

Young Anupam was fascinated by the web; every time he clicked on the screen something happened. It was like making magic! He has been hooked to the world wide web since. Every web design project is an adventure for him.

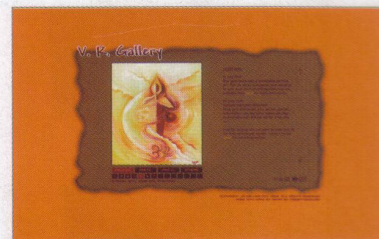

Anupam doesn't follow any trends in particular but draws inspiration from everyday life. The colour scheme of his portfolio was inspired by his wife's latest hair dye! However, he is in awe of the simplicity and beauty of vector illustrations and cites www.grooveshark.com as a brilliant example of Flash and functionality.

In his spare time Anupam runs echoes-of-live.com where music fans submit their best concert pictures. The pictures are polled and the ones with the highest number of votes are then converted into wallpapers for the computer desktop.

Heavy metal band websites are usually badly designed and poorly coded. A modern and contemporary website was designed for Power Quest (www.power-quest.co.uk) which still had a heavy metal feel while avoiding the clichés generally associated with these types of bands

Ardvaark Framers (www.ardvaark-framers.co.uk) The metaphor of a picture frame and various other objects hanging on a wall was used to present the website for this picture framing business

Market yourself constantly as you never know where the next assignment will come from. Anupam was approached during a Threshold gig in London to design a website for German progressive metal band Poverty's No Crime!
